Bill
Dear Mr. Casey:

You may be aware that since 1980 Title V of Public Law 95-426 has called upon the President to submit annually to the Congress a report on international activities by the Federal Government in the fields of science and technology, the so-called "Title V" report. Production of this report has been assigned to the Department of State; of course we must necessarily rely heavily upon the contributions of other concerned departments and agencies.

Congress takes a keen interest in the Title V report and is ready to work with us to produce a truly satisfactory and useful product. We at State are determined that this year's report will be as responsive as possible to the legislative mandate and even more broadly descriptive than previous reports of the place science and technology occupy in our foreign affairs.

If we are to achieve this end, the collaboration of your agency will be essential, and I want to emphasize how much we need your agency's most forthcoming and professional effort in this project. To inaugurate this year's Title V cycle, an organizational meeting will be held on Wednesday, September 4 at 3:00 P.M. in Room 7835 of the Department of State. I invite you to send the representative you deem appropriate to attend this meeting and to serve as your agency's Title V contact.

The Honorable
William J. Casey,
Director of Central Intelligence,
Central Intelligence Agency.

Dear Mr. Casey:

You may be aware that since 1980 Title V of Public Law 95-426 has called upon the President to submit annually to the Congress a report on international activities by the Federal Government in the fields of science and technology, the so-called "Title V" report. Production of this report has been assigned to the Department of State; of course we must necessarily rely heavily upon the contributions of other concerned departments and agencies.

In August I testified before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs; Chairman Zablocki was particularly concerned because, in his view, the annual Title V report had consistently failed to satisfy several of the criteria for Congressional oversight contained in the Title V legislation. He, Assistant Secretary Malone and I have agreed that his staff would work with the State Department (primarily the Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs) to achieve this year a Title V report more closely corresponding to the legislative mandate, and more broadly descriptive of the place science and technology occupies in our foreign affairs. We at State are determined that this year's report will be as responsive as possible to the deeply felt interests of the Congress; and we are convinced that working together with the Legislative Branch we can produce a more satisfactory and useful product.

If we are to achieve this end, the collaboration of the Central Intelligence Agency will be essential, and I want to emphasize how much we need your agency's most forthcoming and professional effort in this project. To inaugurate this year's Title V cycle, Assistant Secretary Malone will be chairing an organizational meeting on Friday, October 28, at 11:00 A.M. in Room 4825 of the Department of State. I invite you to send the officer you deem appropriate to attend this meeting and to serve as your agency's Title V contact.

The State Department Title V coordinator will be Francesco (Frank) J. Alberti, Acting Director of OES/STS. His phone number is 632-2764. Please ask your designated attendee to call Frank informing him that he/she will be at the meeting.
